CARSWELL AND NELSON ARE ELECTED MAYORS

PATHFINDERS FOR HIGHWAY ROUTE IN TWIN CITIES TODAY

Leave After Lunch To Log New Route To Muscle Shoals

STRESS BENEFITS OF TOURIST TRADE

Meininger Statement Tells of Plans of Association

A. B. Steward, assistant manager of the Chicago-Florida Highway Association and B. D. Robinson, special staff correspondent from the Pensacola headquarters, acting as pathfinders for the association, are here today. They reached here during the late morning and immediately after lunch left for Muscle Shoals to log a route from here to the Shoals, it being the intention of the Association probably to offer a side trip to the Shoals as one of the inducements of this highway route southward from the lakes to the gulf.

W. J. Meininger, secretary-manager of the Albany-Decatur chamber of commerce and a member of the executive committee of the association makes the following statement: "An increase in the number of automobiles bearing out-of-state licenses have been perceptible during the past two months and a checker maintained by the association at Flomaton and Pensacola reports that during the last six weeks there have been more Northern tourists utilizing this route than within the past ten months. This should cause us to be alive to the possibilities of tourist travel through this section and the further fact that our roads and crossings must without delay be put in passable condition for the winter travel, not only passable but inviting."

"The executive committee at this time is considering two proposed routes between Chicago and Nashville one of these being through Indianapolis and the other through Evansville. It has not been definitely determined at this time, which of the two routes will be selected, and the people generally should realize the importance of aiding the association in its intensive publicity program. We must realize that the mailing alone of 250,000 first class letters to tourists in the north is a tremendous expense, and each community helping but a little, will be the means of producing a great deal of business which will result in a profit to all points along the line."

"Both the Chicago and the Florida interests are expending vast sums of money. The heaviest movement will be during the beginning of the Florida winter season, and the effects of this work should be apparent in November and December, just prior to the holiday season."

"In so far as the line South of Nashville is concerned I may speak for the association in saying that a number of points as far South as Montgomery are in need of immediate attention, and the importance of the movement will brook of no delay. I hope the people everywhere will understand that immediate action and support is necessary. Southern Alabama has been giving enthusiastic support and this is true particularly of Evergreen, Greenville and Brewton."

"Of our immediate section, I call attention to the plan of stopping the motorcades for the night at Decatur hotels, which is to be accomplished as a part of the Association's program of establishing at Nashville a rendezvous for the express purpose of personally escorting motorcades at least three times a month directly into Florida. This is an innovation in the East of personally conducted tours. This service is rendered at no expense to the tourist and any and all assistance that can be given, including minor repairs to automobiles, will be gratuitous. This will be done by the association sending along one of their own cars with an expert mechanician."

CITIZENS TO PLEAD WITH GOVERNOR TO SAVE 'POOR' YOUTH

More Petitions Request Clemency For Grant

DECLARE FRANKS CASE PRECEDENT

Facts Also to Be Cited To Show Grant Was Not Murderer

(Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Sept. 16—Shortly before Bernard Grant, sentenced to hang October 17 for murder, was to file a petition to Governor Small, pleading for clemency, his attorney, Thomas E. Swanson, received a telegram today from Dr. Agnes Lewis, of St. Cloud, Minn., stating that citizens of St. Cloud would petition the Illinois governor to spare Grant's life.

The movement to save Grant's life was started after Judge John R. Caverly spared the lives of Nathan Leopold Jr., and Richard Loeb, "rich men's sons" and sentenced them to life imprisonment for the murder of Robert Franks.

The petition will not be simply a sentimental appeal based on the active in the Leopold and Loeb case, but the attorneys said it would cite the facts in the case, that Walter Krauser, under a death sentence with Grant, was the murderer of Ralph Souders, a policeman, has repudiated his first statement, implicating Grant and now states that Grant had nothing to do with the holding of a tea and coffee store, in which Souders was killed.

Grant claims he was 19 years old when the crime was committed, the same age as Leopold and Loeb. Krauser also asserts he was only 19. Grant's appeal to the supreme court was refused and his only hope for escape from the gallows is in the Governor's hands.

Krauser has an appeal pending in the supreme court.

Grant is the son of a widow. He was reared in a district near the stockyards in a district known as "back of the yards." It is not charged that he fired the fatal shot. That was charged against Krauser, but he was alleged to have participated. Krauser now says Grant had nothing to do with it.

Kills Railroad Man and Then Himself

(Associated Press)

HUNTINGTON, West. Va., Sept. 16—H. R. McClaughlin, assistant superintendent of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad company at St. Albans was shot to death today by O'Dell Newman, a former conductor on the road who then killed himself.

McClaughlin was standing on the railroad station platform when Newman approached. Newman, according to persons standing nearby, said: "You did me a dirty trick." He then fired four times, killing the official instantly.

Newman was discharged from the road last February. He was pursued by St. Albans officers but he shot himself before he was overtaken.

(Associated Press)

ST. JOHN'S N. F., Sept. 16—Six men were killed, two of them British naval officers, and two others world war heroes when an automobile crashed early today and Leonard Reid, son of the late Sir William Reid, was arrested on a charge of manslaughter as the driver of the car.

The victims were Lieutenant-Commander J. D. O'Callaghan and Lieutenant Burroughs of H. M. S. Constance, promoted only yesterday; Captain J. G. ### VERDICT OF $250 AGAINST THE CITY

In the circuit court here today Martha Black, of near Dandersville, in Lawrence County as plaintiff in the case of Martha Black versus the city of Albany gained a verdict of $250 for bodily injuries, alleged by the plaintiff to have been sustained last Christmas season, while she was being driven in an automobile near the Westminster Presbyterian church in Albany.

Through her attorneys, Almon and Almon and Eyster and Eyster, Mrs. Black claimed that certain lines, said to have been stretched across the street near the Westminster church parsonage caught her and caused bruises.

The lines had been stretched by city authorities it is said in an effort to cut off travel near the Westminster parsonage, lest the noise of passing vehicles should militate against the recovery of Dr. L. F. Goodwin who was seriously ill at that time.

Mr. Black is said to have sued for $5,000.

The city of Albany was represented in the case by City Attorney Melvin Hutson and Judge Thomas W. Wert. Mr. Hutson stated today, that the case will be appealed to a higher court. A number of witnesses appeared for the city of Albany, including former Mayor Edward C. Payne and Superintendent of Streets James W. Pettey.

SCHOOL ENROLLMENT

Students continue to matriculate in the schools of both the cities. The 1,700 mark is near in the enrollments for the Albany schools with hopes bright for 2,000 students during the present semester.

On yesterday where it was stated that 1,622 entered the Albany schools "against 1,490 two years ago," the statement should have read: "total enrollment of Albany schools today was 1,622 against 1,490 one year ago."

STREET CROWD BIG BUT QUIET DURING COUNT

CLOSEST RACE IN YEARS FEATURES DECATUR VOTING

Incumbent Is Reelected For Sixth Term As Municipal Head

MORE THAN 600 VOTES POLLED

Roper and Hendrix Are Re-elected Members Of the Council

James A. Nelson Monday was re-elected mayor of Decatur over John A. Thomason by 23 votes in one of the closest municipal races in the history of the city. Mayor Nelson's total was 311 votes, Mr. Thomason polling 288 votes.

Mr. Nelson now is concluding his tenth year of service as mayor of Decatur and his re-election will make the sixth consecutive time he has been honored by his fellow citizens.

W. E. Roper and Clyde Hendrix, the only two members of the board of aldermen who were voted on for re-election, polled flattering votes and will be returned for another term. The three new members of the board include: Sam H. Malone, manager of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company's North Alabama office; Philip E. Humphrey, of the Harris Motors company and W. F. Boswell, manager of the Decatur Box and Basket company.

Mr. Boswell has the unique distinction of having been twice elected as a member of the board, without having yet served. He was named two years ago, but when a question arose as to his eligibility because of polls payment, he resigned rather than permit any possibility of embarrassment to the city through any vote of his, as an alderman, which might be legally questioned. He was elected again yesterday and will assume office with the beginning of the new term, early in October.

The Nelson-Thomason campaign was one remarkably free from any personalities, and was waged quietly by the two men on the friendliest plane. Mr. Thomason had been a member of the Decatur city council for 12 years, much of which time he had served as mayor pro-tem of Decatur.

The new administration will take office, faced with the task of concluding Decatur's big street improvement program, which now is well underway, among the other civic problems which it must solve.

The total vote in Decatur was 603

Final count of the ballots in the four boxes was not completed until late last night and crowds downtown evidenced great interest in the tabulation, which at times, was exceedingly close.

A. L. Jolly was elected president of the city council, defeating H. M. Priest, the voting being Jolly 648 and Priest 516.

J. N. Hendrix, a former chief of police was named to the head of the department again, defeating J. W. Pettey, his nearest opponent, by a lead of 47 votes. The vote was: Bell 91, Hendrix 500, Mullins 59, Pettey 453, Stewart 104.

Music in Churches Is Sermon Topic

"Acting by divine authority; or shall we have instrumental music in our churches" will be the sermon-subject of Rev. C. E. Woolridge, of Dallas, Texas, at the Jackson street Church of Christ revival in the large tent on Grant street this evening.

Rev. Woolridge is expected to use restatements of some of the arguments made recently at Nashville when a joint debate was had as to the advisability of musical instruments, such as organs, pianos, violins and the like being used during public worship.

Rev. Woolridge will oppose the use of instrumental music in churches. He said he did not hear the Nashville debate, but that he was familiar with the arguments put forth in it, by opposing speakers.

Last night Rev. Woolridge spoke to a large crowd at the tent on the subject: "Obedience or disobedience."

Marriage License Finds Its Way to Voting Booth Here

Election officials at the fourth ward, city hall, box in Albany, who had the task of counting all of the absentee ballots cast in Monday's municipal election, found themselves unable to count one ballot, when they discovered that instead of being a vote, it was a wedding certificate from a local minister.

In some manner the envelope, which resemble an absentee ballot envelope, found its way into the letters which carried votes by mail. Three other absentee ballots for Albany were sent to Decatur by mistake.

SYNOPSIS

To Sir Oliver Trevelian, renowned for his exploits on the Spanish Main, comes Peter Godolphin, insulting and threatening, to forbid Oliver's marriage with his sister, Rosamund. Because of personal enmity growing out of land disputes, both Peter and Rosamund's guardian, Sir John Killgrew, oppose the marriage. Incensed at Sir John's reference to him as a "pirate" Oliver engages him in a duel. His young half-brother, Lionel, awaits his return, anxiety tempered with speculation as to how Oliver's death would affect his own fortunes. Oliver, he realizes, accumulated considerable wealth through his adventures on the Spanish Main.

CHAPTER II—Continued

And meanwhile Lionel had remained at home taking his ease. He loved his ease. His nature was inherently indolent. He was not born to toil and struggle, and none had sought to correct the shortcomings of his character in that respect.

Sometimes he wondered what the future might hold for him should Oliver come to marry. When his thoughts did turn to it in momentary uneasiness he would abruptly dismiss them with the reflection that when all was said Oliver loved him and Oliver would never fail to provide adequately for all his wants.

In this undoubtedly he was fully justified. Oliver was more parent than brother to him. When their father had been brought home to die for the wound dealt him by an outraged husband—and a shocking spectacle that sinners' death had been with its hasty, terrified repentance—he had entrusted Lionel to his elder brother's care.

At the time Oliver was seventeen and Lionel twelve. But Oliver had seemed by so many years older than his age that the twice-widowed Ralph Trevelian had come to depend upon this steady, resolute and masterful child of his first marriage. It was into his ear that the dying man had poured the wretched tale of his repentance for the

"An' what be that, zur?" quoth Nicholas.

"He has gone to punish Sir John for having maligned him."

A grin spread upon the weather-beaten countenance of Nicholas. "Be that so? Marry, 'twere time, Sir John be he over long 't th' tongue."

Lionel stood amazed at the man's easy confidence and supreme assurance of how his master must acquit himself.

"You—you have no fear, Nicholas?"

He did not add of what. But the servant understood, and his grin grew broader still.

"Fear? Lackaday! I hain't afeared for Sir Oliver, and don't be afeared. Sir Oliver'll be home to sup with a sharp-set appetite—'tis the only difference fighting ever made to be."

The servant was justified of his confidence by the events, though through a slight error of judgment Sir Oliver did not quite accomplish all that he promised. In anger, and when he deemed that he had been affronted, he was—as his chronicler never wearied of insisting—of a tigerish ruthlessness. He rode to Arwenack fully resolved to kill his calumniator. Nothing less would satisfy him.

Arrived at that fine embattled castle of the Killgrews which commanded the entrance to the estuary of the Fal, he found Peter Godolphin there before him; and because of Peter's presence Sir Oliver was more deliberate and formal in his accusation of Sir John than he had intended.

Sir John, however, came halfway to meet the quarrel. His rant against the "Pirate of Penarrow"—as he had come to dub Sir Oliver—rendered him almost as eager to engage as was his visitor.

They found a secluded corner of the deer park for their business, and there Sir John—a slim, sallow gentleman of some thirty years of age—made an onslaught with sword and dagger upon Sir Oliver, full worthy of the onslaught he had made earlier with his tongue. But his impetuosity availed him less than nothing. Sir Oliver was come there with a certain purpose, and it was his way that he never

"Sir Oliver was carefully wiping his blade whilst Sir John lay coughing upon the turf."

Life he had lived and the state in which he was leaving his affairs with such scant provision for his sons.

For Oliver he had no fear. His anxieties were all for Lionel, whom he also judged with that same penetrating insight vouchsafed a man in his last hours. Hence his piteous recommendation of him to Oliver, and Oliver's ready promise to be father, mother and brother to the youngster.

All this was in Lionel's mind as he sat musing there, and again he struggled with that hideous insistent thought that if things should go ill with his brother at Arwenack, there would be great profit to himself; that these things he now enjoyed upon another's bounty he would then enjoy in his own right. A devil seemed to mock him with the whispered sneer that were Oliver to die his own grief would not be long-lived.

So wrought up was he by the welter of his emotions, by that fierce strife between his conscience and his egotism, that he came abruptly to his feet, a cry upon his lips—

"Vade retro, Sathana!"

Old Nicholas, looking on abruptly, saw the lad's face, waxen, his brow bedewed with sweat.

"Master Lionel! Master Lionel!" he cried, his small, bright eyes concernedly scanning his young master's face.

"What be amiss?"

Lionel mopped his brow.

"Sir Oliver has gone to Arwenack upon a punitive business," said he.

Austinville News

The public school opened here yesterday with an enrollment of about 200. Prof. C. O. Maner, the superintendent of last year is back again from Florence with great hopes and plans for the upbuilding of the school and community.

The city election was held here yesterday with the following results, for mayor, C. A. Earwood, for aldermen J. F. McClary, F. B. Roberts, Will Royer, J. C. Justice and A. J. Roper.

The Woman's Missionary society of the Methodist church met Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the church parlor. A great increase in membership and attendance has been made this year and much good has been accomplished.

Owing to illness, Rev. Wade was unable to preach Sunday. Rev. James Clarke filled the pulpit at both morning and evening services.

Messrs. Parker, Saul and Ed Wallace have returned to Florence after spending the week end with Mr. Mrs. P. W. Sparkman.

Mrs. M. H. Means of the Masonic home at Montgomery is the guest of friends here.

There will be an ice cream supper at the school house Tuesday evening Sept. 16th, for the benefit of the Austinville Baptist church. Following the cream supper members of the Eastern Star will give a singing and musical concert in the school auditorium.

Switzerland Bars German Cars.

Unless Electrically Equipped. BERNE—The Federal Railway Administration has announced that in the future only electrically equipped German railway coaches and sleepers will be permitted to cross the Swiss frontier in transit to Italy. The order was issued as a result of the railroad disaster last April at the Swiss exit of the Simplon tunnel, in which Dr. Helfferich, former German finance minister, was among those killed.

Gas lighted coaches were said to be responsible for the fire that started immediately after the wreck.

A DAILY PRAYER.—When what seems to us an eternal night appears, may Thou who canst raise the dead in sin to life, help us to see in that hopeless night only the shadow of an eternal dawn.

Mr. Davis is moving from place to place in the west, let us hope he is getting somewhere.

The spice of malice is one of the world's bitter sweets.

True statements are not always met with others saying they are true.

Asking "why" is most generally the equivalent of inquiring: "Why does a rabbit wiggle its nose." For instance, it is not known "why" two and two make four.

An unpleasant dream for the automobilist—one where his car has turned to an airplane and is carrying him out to sea in the direction of breakers with jagged rocks appearing above them, at the rapid rate of two miles the minute.

Allison Mullins (present address, Blackfoot, Idaho) stole a safe. At least, it has been so reported by a grand jury in the commonwealth of Kentucky, and no denial from the gentleman accused has been reported. Whether his present job is doing a Sandoz act with a sideshow or moving mountains barehanded we are not told, and except for the matter of gratifying an idle curiosity is beyond the question.

But on with the story. The alleged safe stealing was done in Kentucky, several hundred miles from the miscreant's present whereabouts. So far in fact that Governor Fields, to whom a request has been made for a requisition, thus disposes of the application: "I have come to the conclusion that it would hardly justify the state to spend the large sum of money required to send an agent all the way to Idaho after this man and bring him back to Kentucky for trial."

Which opens up several interesting questions. 1. Can the state afford to say to criminals, "If you make it rather expensive to catch you we won't consider the game worth the candle?" 2. Just what ought to be the basis in determining how much railroad fare should be paid to apprehend a culprit? 3. How far should the law sen for a murderer; a poacher; a bootlegger; a traffic law violator; a man who spits on the sidewalk?

To the layman it looks as if something ought to be done even if the state is a little short of carfare. In England where the chancellors have a distaste for seeing a subpoena to answer served on a nobleman recourse is had to the device of the "letter missive." That is to say when someone dares to sue a peer the chancellor dispatches a note to the defendant politely informing him that if he doesn't report at court at some convenient time he will be served with process even as is commoner.

An analogy to this procedure suggests itself for use in such a case as that of Mr. Mullins. The governor might at the expense of a two cent stamp and a sheet of stationery write a letter that would go "all the way to Idaho after this man" suggesting that he return at his own expense and give the commonwealth a run for its money. Of course if he did not then return there would be time enough to consider an alternative.

At any rate Governor Fields' fellow citizen should have an opportunity to take a look at man who could steal a safe. They might want to substitute him for the state militia.—Nashville Tennessean.

The federal constitution was signed by leading Americans September 7, 1787, but the necessary majority for its ratification was not secured until 1789. "It (the constitution) is the greatest work ever struck off at any one time by the mind and purpose of man," according to William E. Gladstone, many times prime minister of England, and who held that office at the ripe age of 84 years.

But as great as was and is the constitution, it was not adopted without a struggle, and during the time discussion was being had over its adoption "two states withdrew from the Union."

The assaults made on the constitution today, even those fierce assaults made by some against the supreme court, as provided for the constitution will come to naught.

William Pitt, one of the truly great statesmen of all time, said of our constitution, although he was an Englishman:

"It will be the wonder and admiration of all future generations, and the model of all future constitutions."

David Jayne Hill said of that famous instrument relation to human rights:

"No other country in the world possesses the guarantees of individual liberty and inherent rights that are accorded by the Constitution of the United States."

J. M. Back, solicitor general of the United States, said lately of the constitution:

"The greatest and noblest purpose of the constitution was not alone to hold in nicest equipoise the relative powers of the nation and the states, but also to maintain in the scales of justice a true equilibrium between the rights of government and the rights of the individual. It did not believe that the state was omnipotent or infallible and yet it proclaimed its authority within wise and just limits. It defended the integrity of the human soul."

Difference of opinion, as to where individual human rights end, and what may be termed "collective rights" begin, will always be arising. Those who emphasize personal liberty will seek to interpret the constitution to suit their purposes, while those who look to the general or "collective" good will interpret it to suit their purposes.

The Central Christian Advocate says: "More Methodists are reading the daily newspaper today than ever before, and more Methodists are editors, publishers and writers of the newspapers than ever in the history of the church."

The same might truthfully be said of Baptists, Presbyterians, Episcopalians, Christians, Lutherans, Congregationalists, Catholics and in fact every Christian denomination. More church people are reading the daily newspaper today than ever before in the United States, and the daily newspapers in this country are devoting more space to religious news and comment than ever before. Scarcely an American daily is found that does not give prominence to religious news and comment and some of them have regular departments devoted to the dissemination not only of religious news, but of religious articles, Sunday school lessons, sermons and church literature generally.

The Central Christian Advocate, quoted above, adds:

There is a growing disposition on the part of editors and publishers to feature church activities. Our experience for fifteen years, and especially the last seven years, reveals a growing tendency on the part of the publishers and editors to co-operate with the churches in spreading news. If the church would only give these facts in a new style. The church should co-operate more with the editors and both pastors and lay officials should keep in close touch with the editors of the papers in their community, not for criticism, unless it is constructive. Editors are always willing to receive news and even letters of real criticism and information from readers of their papers.

It would be well for all pastors to act upon the suggestion made above. The church, by co-operating with the newspapers, by giving them information of interest relating to churches and religious activities, could help greatly in increasing the usefulness of the daily papers to the cause of the churches. As religion is the most vital thing in life, so religious news in secular papers is important to the cause of religion because it helps to create and maintain popular interest in religious matters.—Anniston Star.

and, according to unofficial tabulation was divided as follows: Nelson 311, Thomason 288 for mayor; for aldermen: Boswell 275, Brock 121, Giles 198, Hendrix 467, Humphrey 267, Malone 377, Meadors 187, Montgomery 245, McMath 218, Roper 465, Todd 223.

Tabulation A Feature

One of the features of the Decatur election was the tabulation Monday evening. Beginning promptly at five o'clock, when the polls closed, the officials of the election worked steadily until they had completed the count, something after eight o'clock.

During the major part of the counting, the two candidates for mayor were neck and neck. Nelson obtained nine of the first dozen ballots counted, but Thomason rapidly reduced that lead and before one hundred had been checked through he was ahead. He held a lead of from five to 15 votes then through another hundred, reports on the progress of the counting showing totals of Nelson 85, Thomason 95; Nelson 110, Thomason 120; Nelson 135, Thomason 145; Nelson 155, Thomason 165; Nelson 175, Thomason 185. It was probably the closest count in the history of the city at this point. On the next 35 ballots counted, however Nelson gained five, making the totals Nelson 195 and Thomason 200. As the 402nd ballot was counted, the two candidates tied at 201 each.

The following 30 votes gave Nelson a gain of 10 more, and for the first time since early in the check, the incumbent forged ahead, the totals being Thomason 210, Nelson 215. Nelson then obtained a lead of ten votes, which he held steadily to the finish, adding an extra vote here and there to reach his majority of 23.

HIGH TAXES HELP CRIPPLE GERMAN MATCH INDUSTRY

PFUNGSTADT—German's match industry has been hard hit by the lack of credits and high taxes. Because of these one of the largest match factories in the country was sold recently to interests representing the Swedish-American combine. The German tax regulations require that the internal taxes on matches must be paid two weeks after the product has been placed on the market.

Many manufacturers contend that it is virtually impossible to carry on business under the present conditions when credits are so difficult to obtain. The result according to the factory owners, is that every match factory in Germany is working on part time or has closed.

They say foreign capital has endeavored to take advantage of the situation and obtain a foothold in the industry when match factories and their property may be purchased at what many persons consider "bargain rates."

Pathfinders For Highway Route In Twin Cities Today

"To give some idea of the tremendous influx of motorists and tourists travel into Florida last season, our association has checked through the various agencies that there were 310,000 cars Florida-bound last winter, and of this number it was the first trip for many of them."

"The route through the Goldenrod state is the shortest line through Pensacola and form in a reality a straight line from Chicago. Due to the fact that other communities to the East of us are expending large sums of money to attract the travel eastward of the line, we are now undertaking to make an arrangement for a representative who will be stationed in Nashville throughout the season beginning November 1st, to assist us in routing the daily business through Pulaski, Athens, Albany-Decatur, Hartsville, Cullman and south through Birmingham."

"A magazine which will show the of the route and other information of interest to tourists is now being prepared. The committee has determined that this shall be supported through advertising."

"This afternoon, Mr. Steward and Mr. Robinson will log the route for the side trip from here to Muscle Shoals and we hope to attract additional tourists because of the great sight seeing side trip which will be when completed the largest man-made hydro-electric power project in the world."

"Another attraction to be offered is the side trip from here to the Alabama Forest Reserve, for fishing and hunting. Arrangements have been perfected for permits from the local federal authorities; likewise the tourists will be offered the privileges of our beautiful golf course, the only charge being a nominal greens fee."

"The attention accorded Mr. Steward and Mr. Robinson on the entire trip, was greatly appreciated by these gentlemen, both of whom expressed themselves enthusiastically over the route through the Twin Cities."

"Considering the tremendous value, not only from a commercial standpoint to our people but also the tremendous publicity for the district in general, I cannot but urge immediate support for the movement."

dian tribes and activities with them. Chief Thunder Bird Parsons was christened by Chief Little Bird, 101 years old, and said to be a direct descendant of Chief Thunder Bird, who was a warrior of the tribe 200 years ago.

AMUSEMENTS

A fist fight, realistic and intense, that will cause the audience to grasp their seats while watching with breathless anxiety its outcome is one of the thrilling high lights of "The Huntress," a First National picture which comes to the Princess theater tomorrow and which serves to introduce Colleen Moore as a First National star.

The fight is between an ex-pugilist and a baneful city boy, and takes place in a crowded restaurant. Tables and chairs fly about the room. The patrons scatter as the two characters roll about the floor, each endeavoring to master the other.

There have been several famous screen fights. Perhaps the two best remembered were in "The Spoilers" and in "Tobacco David." But the fight in "The Huntress," which forms the climax of one of the best pictures of its kind to ever be screened, tops them all.

The fight is between Lloyd Hughes, who plays the leading male role in this picture opposite Colleen Moore, and Walter Long, famous screen character man, who plays the principal heavy part.

The all-star cast of "The Huntress" includes also Russell Simpson, Wilfred North, Snitz Edwards and Charles E. Anderson.

WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE, of Emporia, Kans., has announced himself as independent candidate for the Governorship of Kansas, bolting the Republican party, because, he says, Carr W. TOKIO—Unemployment is increasing in Japan, according to figures compiled by government employment offices. During June 36,000 men applied to these offices for work, an increase of 100 per cent over the figures for June 1923. Industrial depression and the effects of the earthquakes are blamed.

GO RIGHT AT IT

Friends and Neighbors In Albany Will Show You A Way

Get at the root of the trouble. Rubbing an aching back may relieve it, But won't cure it if the kidneys are weak. You must reach the root of it—the kidneys.

Doan's Pills go right at it; Reach the cause; attack the pain. Are recommended by many Albany people.

Ask your neighbor? Mrs. J. F. Doyle, 1420 Fourth Ave., S., Albany, says: "I had a constant backache and hurting across my kidneys. When I stooped to dust, I could hardly straighten again and I became so dizzy, black specks danced before my eyes. My kidneys didn't act as they should and I became so weak, I could hardly get around the house. I used Doan's Pills and they completely cured me of the trouble. I have had no return of the complaint in the last six years."
